EMBROIDERY

There are a number of reasons that embroidered garments are ideal. It is the most popular choice for employers to give embroidered garments to their workforce to promote a strong identity for promoting their brand.

- Long lasting, quality logos stitched on to your fabric
- Ideal choice for uniform and workwear
- demographic information such as postcode, prePopular for left chest and sleeve logos

The most popular method for getting your logo design on to clothing, a computerised sewing machine receives your logo, and turns it into an embroidery pattern. You can embroider multi colour design, or stick to simple text, and our embroidery machines will get to work, stitching your logo directly on to the garment.

A metal frame is placed onto the garment in this technique to get the logo on it. The frame is backed by a piece of fabric on the printing area. This ensures the garment does not move when the logo is getting stitched. This could leave a mark on the fabric but it can be easily washed clean. A computerised embroidery machine carries out the actual embroidery process. It digitises the logo and submits it to the embroidery machine. The colour of the threads needs to be put in before the process can begin. We only use premium quality threads to guarantee the best quality results.

Embroidery works the best on business shirts/blouses, polo shirts, aprons/tabards, headwear and jackets, as well as thinner fabrics.

SEWING AND STITCHING

We do customized uniforms for schools, corporates, hotels, hospitals, security, special events uniforms, casual and formal suits, overall, wedding dresses, etc.

HEAT TRANSFER PRINTING

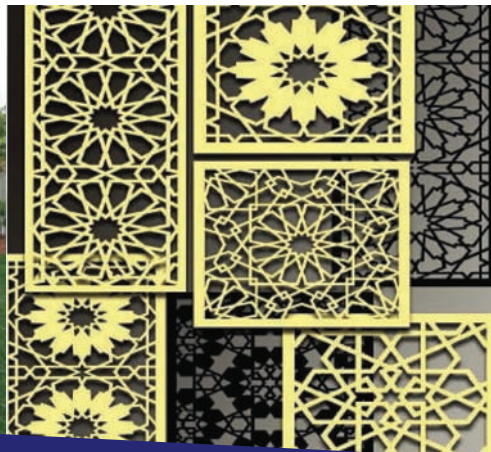

We do direct image transfers printing to polo shirts, caps, round t-shirts, over rolls, umbrellas, uniforms whether it's single colour or multi-colours using DTF materials, sublimations, PVC and plastic soul colours.
